A donation of $25.00 was also received from the Blaimore School Board making a total of $91.00 net turned in to the fund.

The committee met on Friday evening in the Blaimore Town Hall to make a report and wind up the business connected with the affair.

A vote of thanks was extended to all those taking part, to those who sold tickets, as well as to the Blaimore Enterprise for publicity given through its columns.

BACK IN BLAIRMORE'S HISTORY

Thirty-one years ago, T. Ede, barrister and solicitor, advocated high taxes and many civic improvements within the village of Blaimore. As a result of discussions, a municipal tax rate of 4 mills on the dollar was set.

Coleman's first football club was organized on Wednesday, April 20th, 1904, with the following officers: A. C. Plummerfelt, hon. president; T. Dunham, president; Dr. Westwood, vice-president; J. R. Miller, secretary-treasurer; R. Alderson, manager; Arthur Hancock, captain; E. E. Reynolds and J. C. Reid committee. The name selected for the new club was "The Coleman United Football Club." Just about this time, a slight error occurred in the advertisement of the Blaimore hotel, operated by D. C. Drain, when a line supposed to read "Bar well stocked with choicest brands" appeared: "Bar well soaked with choicest brands."

This same time in 1904, the West Canadian Collieries Limited made application to the parliament of Canada for the right to purchase, lease or otherwise take over as a going concern or otherwise, either in whole or in part, the property, business, franchises, shares or other securities, rights, powers or assets, or any of them, of the Cardiff Railway Company and the United Gold Fields of British Columbia, Limited. The capital stock was announced as one million pounds, divided into one million shares of one pound each.

Hotel room rates at Frank were two dollars per day and up.

"VANCOUVER'S SCHOOLS TEACH COMMUNISM"

The above was the charge made by Mrs. Charlotte Cole to the Vancouver school board, when she demanded an investigation.

"It is an appalling and soul-shaking state of affairs for a mother to contemplate," she said. "Children in the May Day parade had followed the Red Flag, a fitting emblem of the most sanguinary and ruthless government ever forced on a hapless people. The Union Jack was not carried."

She had heard school teachers and high school students expounding Communist principles in public, and she demanded an investigation and weeding out all teachers with Communist tendencies. The matter was tabled for later consideration.

HILLCREST ASKS FOR GREATER RAILWAY PATRONAGE

At a meeting of the Hillcrest Miners' Literary and Athletic Association on May 15th, the following resolution was passed unanimously: "That all merchants are requested to have their goods, which we purchase, shipped in by railroad transportation."

REASONS:
"Ninety-eight per cent of the coal produced in Hillcrest is purchased by the railroad company.
"Truck companies are paying a low rate of wages for long hours of duty, whereas railroad companies are paying fair wages for eight hours per day.
"Railroad employees to the number of 7 in Bellevue and 2 in Hillcrest are permanent residents and are paying their share of taxes, as well as the railroad company.
"Every train that is taken off through unfair truck competition means a loss to miners and coal companies of several thousand tons of coal per year.
"We understand that during the past week railroad freight rates have been reduced to an extent never known before.
"Under these circumstances, we feel that we have good reasons for asking you to comply with our request in favor of the railroad company."

Copies of the above were forwarded to all business people.

LADY WITH THE FACTS

The following interesting article is clipped from the May 21st issue of the Vancouver Sun. Mrs. Turner (nee Miss Phyllis Gregory) is a niece of the late Miss Mary Gregory, former housekeeper at the Cosmopolitan hotel here.

"Partly because she is the only woman in a well filled room, partly because she is altogether attractive, and especially because of her magnetic-like skill in producing any desired set of facts at an instant's notice, Mrs. Phyllis G. Turner is the most interesting personality of the Dominion Tariff Board party sounding out British Columbia's views on automobile and petroleum duties.

"Mrs. Turner is a British Columbian, better known to her old friends in Roseland and to the University group of a decade ago as Phyllis Gregory. She is economic adviser to the tariff board.
"During the hearings she occupies a seat just in front of the Commissioners, within easy whispering distance. She presents a pleasing picture with her chestnut hair, alabaster skin, clear profile and smartly cut business suit, adorned just sufficiently to accentuate feminine charm. She has earned the admiration of those addressing the board by the speed with which she extracts the right set of facts to enable him to follow the discussion of the moment.
"Phyllis Gregory graduated with honors and scholarships in economics at the University of British Columbia eleven years ago. One scholarship took her to Bryn Mawr. Another gave her a term at the London school of economics.
"She married in England and is the mother of two children. It was when her husband died that she entered upon the profession for which she was so well trained. She was appointed economic adviser to the tariff board eighteen months ago. The visit to Vancouver has been a happy experience, both for her and for her many old friends."—C. Norman Senior.

We don't accuse him of commercializing, but a well known undertaker at a party a few nights ago played "Waiting for you" on a lodge trumpet.

NO DOUBT ABOUT PASS ROUTE CHOICE OF AIR MAILS

Efforts on the part of some cities in Alberta to make it appear that the Crows' Nest Pass route is not the logical air route are not exactly in good taste. The government is providing landing fields, and preparing to equip the southern route with beacons and all the standard radio equipment used in modern commercial flying, and there is not the least doubt that it is the route that will be followed by the air mails to the Pacific—Lethbridge Herald.

MRS. STEEVES AT FERNIE

Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, M.L.A., C.C.F. representative for North Vancouver, spoke to quite a large audience in Victoria Hall Wednesday evening. Thomas Uphill, who occupied the chair, spoke briefly and then introduced the speaker. From time to time members of the Communist party put questions to the speaker, but she was quite at home on the platform and soon put them to rest. The wide difference in the C.C.F. platform and the Communist party was the method used to reach the end in view. The C.C.F. believed in ending the electorate, but Communist's idea was to use force. She said in part:

Fear was one of the main emotions of life. One experienced fear that one would not have the necessities of life, one had fears of one's children, fears of old age, fears of illness. Life was a struggle and there were many things which entered to deprive and detract.

Life was also a conflict of ideas within one's own head. The technology and improvements in industry kept to a ceaseless change, and ideas eventually lost their value and became useless. Such ideas, said Mrs. Steeves, had to be got rid of. There had to be a mental house cleaning. There was also conflicts between the older and younger people, conflicts between social groups, between those who owned nothing. If, one noticed, pointed out Mrs. Steeves, in the cases of strikes, the moral and legal right was nearly always on the side of the worker, but the instruments of power were behind the capitalist groups. The present situation in Vancouver was a good example of this predicament. Those boys had a right to make their protests, and yet the first advance they made the militia and police were ordered out against them. She urged the people to stand behind those young men.—Ferne Free Press.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, is giving up his avocation of globe trotter for one as oil prospector.

The late Col. T. E. Lawrence, who achieved a hero's role in Arabia during the Great War, lived in recent years on an income of £100 (about $460), a close friend of his, Canada spent on military purposes alone $146,478,320 from 1921 to the end of February this year, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia has sent a personal telegram to the League of Nations asking it to stop Italy's military preparations in northeast Africa.

A return tabled in the House of Commons disclosed that since July 1930, a total of 97 judges in various branches of the judiciary have been appointed to positions for which the salary is $5,000 a year or more.

The radio branch, department of marine, announced the following have been awarded commercial certificates of proficiency in radio: C. S. Baker, Meeta, Sank, and B. L. Marshall, Saskatoon, Sask.

Gift For Chief Guide

Lady Baden-Powell Receives Standard As Token Of Loyalty

Lady Baden-Powell, Chief of the Girl Guides of the World, is privileged to use her own special standard. In 1922 some of the English County Commissioners planned to make a standard for the Chief Guide, and a small committee was formed. Overseas Commissioners of Provinces and States joined the County Commissioners. Each emblem was worked, and all were gathered together and mounted. The Standard is a token of loyalty and regard to the Chief Guide.

The Emblems are as follows: The Trefoil in gold on blue, the Guide Emblem showing the three promises. The blue sea has silver waves and dolphins, with three ships sailing forth to the end of the earth to carry the Guide Movement to all parts of the world. Also in the midst of the sea is the Gold Fish, which the Chief Guide alone wears.

Then there are red motto bands—the red for cheerfulness, and the mottoes are, on the other side, "Be Prepared," and on the other, "Ar nyd yr Ffwr pyl yd yw," the Powell motto in Welsh, meaning "Where there is a Powell there is a safety."

Between the motto bands is a space of green and white triangles, and they are the tents of the Guide camps on the green grass, referring to the outdoor side of Guide life.

In the fly are two blue lions, and these are the Baden and Powell crests. It is not possible for a woman to have a crest, as they are worn on a man's head in battle, but here they are, to turn Guiders' thoughts to their great founder, in his leadership and comradeship for the Scout and Guide Movement has been so splendidly helped by the Chief Guide.

Canadian High Commissioner

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian high commissioner in London, had been seriously ill but had recovered, and there was no thought of replacing him. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declared Mr. Bennett declared that the present Canadian high commissioner was one of the greatest ministers to hold that office since Sir Charles Tupper.

An Interesting Test

Shows More Boys Are Color Blind Than Girls

One boy in ten is color blind. This is the discovery of Dr. James Drever, professor of psychology in University of Edinburgh, made in tests of pupils in public schools.

"This can have tragic consequences," says the professor, "especially as new vehicles, red, green and amber lights control the traffic and these children are the future drivers of motor vehicles."

The figures represent a 100 per cent increase over previous calculations.

"It is a serious thing to discover that 12 boys out of 120 might confuse the 'stop' and 'go' signals of traffic lights," he said.

"Nothing can be done to cure color blindness. If it is possible to correct confusion between certain colors with spectacles, the result is that other colors become confused."

"A similar number of girls was tested, but in only one instance was there defective color sense."

It has been found that while fewer girls are color-blind, color-blindness is transmitted to children from mothers rather than fathers. The mother of colorblind children often isn't so afflicted herself.

By Ellen Worth

The cape is versatile. It's almost magic. It seems to turn into sleeves at the front, while you look at it. The wrap-over arrangement, always a favorite with the larger woman, makes the figure so perfectly. Skirt plays into plenty of freedom for walking.

Maline eyelid battie, so refreshingly cool to look at and to wear made the original. You can copy it exactly at very little expense.

Patterns 20c each. Address mail orders to: Pattern Department, Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg.

The Spring Fashion Magazine is better than ever. Entirely illustrated in color you will find it a very stimulating fashion edition. There are clothes for cruising and clothes to brighten the lives of stay-at-homes.

Many delightful little models for the smaller members of the family. Of course, patterns are obtainable for the designs illustrated. Send for your copy to-day, the price is 20 cents.

World Is Getting Better

The Amherstburg Echo says the jail at Amherstburg, Ontario, is to be sold by auction because it has held no prisoners for forty years. Turnkeys at Sandwich had to wash dishes because there were no prisoners to do it. There was no cook in the Winnipeg jail because of a lack of prisoners of that category. The world's improving.

BRITISH CABINET SHAKEUP PREDICTED AS SIMON'S POLICY CRITICIZED

Reports from London state that changes will shortly be made in the British cabinet, and that there is a possibility of Premier Ramsay MacDonald (left) succeeding Sir John Simon (centre) as British Foreign Minister. Rumors are current that a section of the Conservative party is dissatisfied with the handling of foreign affairs by Sir John, and if MacDonald took his place, Stanley Baldwin (right), would automatically become Prime Minister.

Young Scientist Returns

Englishman Finishes Two Years Study In The North

Two lonely years in the Arctic are over for T. P. Manning, youthful British scientist who made studies in the distant north for the British Geographical Society.

Travelling alone, the young Englishman came trudging into Churchill from Southampton Island, 500 miles north of there.

Modest and more than a bit bashful, Manning was not talkative about his sojourn in the Arctic through two summers and winters. His studies were extensive, including even fauna of the region.

Most of his two years in the Arctic was spent alone on Southampton Island, a Hudson's Bay Company post point where he obtained supplies. His long trek out was made without a companion. With a team of four dogs, he hit southward.

On the journey he crossed 40 miles of dangerous ice flow between Southampton Island and Chesterfield Inlet. Then he followed the ice along the coast south, making the journey into Churchill without mishap.

Best Advertising Medium

Newspapers During 1934 Received Largest Share Of Advertisements

Newspapers during 1934 received 61.8 per cent of $223,216,520 sent by 367 national advertisers during 1934 according to an analysis released by the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The report showed that magazines received 25 per cent of the total amount, while chain broadcasting received 13.2 per cent.

Compared with 1933, when the bureau analysis covered the appropriations of 351 advertisers spending $185,706,924, the current analysis showed both a greater number of national advertisers as well as a higher individual expenditure.

Newest Naval Weapon

Germany Has Already Constructed 450 "Vest Pocket" Warships

Re-armament Germany's newest naval weapon—swift "vest pocket" torpedo boats as revolutionary as her "vest pocket" battleships—was revealed recently.

Foreign naval experts said the Reich already has constructed 450 tiny speed boats, capable of 60 knots each, and manned by five men and carrying four torpedoes.

A second, similar development, the experts said, is another speed boat twice as large, carrying 10 men and having an operating range of almost 2,000 miles.

Naval observers, asserting the new craft would give other powers much food for thought as the Reich's recently disclosed plans to build 500 submarines, listed these major advantages of the craft:

Their cost is little and their operation economical; their crew is small; they are so small and can change direction so fast they would be hard to hit; their four torpedoes, with any kind of luck, can do damage to enemy ships.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 2

OUR DAY OF WORSHIP

Golden Text: God is a spirit; and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth. John 4:24.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 92:1-5, 12, 13.

Explanations And Comments
Let Worship Be Joyful, Psalm 100. The Psalmist calls upon all lands to worship God. "Think of an Israelite so enlightened as to God's purpose," exclaimed Dr. F. B. Meyer, "as to call upon all lands to join in the great chorus of God's praise! This is surely the missionary hymn of the church! The Psalm is known as the Old Hundredth, but the name is a misnomer. It is always new."

Worship God with a joyful heart, make a joyful noise, serve him with gladness, come before him with singing. This frame of mind should be natural to one for God is our Creator, we are his people, the sheep, as it were, of his pasture, for whom, like a shepherd, he tenderly cares. "It is a poor congregation that can sit or stand contented to be dumb when God is praised. If gladness is to hit; their four torpedoes, with any kind of luck, can do damage to enemy ships."

We should engage in public worship with thanks and praise, giving thanks to him and blessing his name.

Cows Attend Banquet

Two Bovines Are Guests At Luncheon In New York

Members of the American Guernsey Cattle Club sat down to their annual luncheon at New York with two of their most distinguished proteges, who mowed and belloved throughout.

The guests of honor, Iceberg and Foremost Southern Maid, ate grass and took bows from a centre table in the banquet hall of a midtown hotel.

It was Iceberg's first glimpse of civilization. He was born on the edge of the Antarctic circle with the Admiral Byrd expedition. Foremost Southern Maid is one of the three cows the expedition took along to furnish milk to the men.

At the luncheon the gold medal awarded to Admiral Byrd by the club for "distinguished service to the dairy industry" was received by Lieutenant-Commander G. O. Noville in the absence of his chief.

The two bovines, accustomed to the hazards of an adventurous life, took the whole proceedings much more calmly than the jittery heliophiles pressed into service as cow hands for the occasion.

Cheap Sea Trip

Organization In Germany Provides Cruise At Low Cost

For a three-week cruise to Madeira at a cost of only $6.25 a week, 3,000 German workers will shortly leave Berlin. The charge includes everything—fare, food, trips and tips and is one of the cheapest cruises in the world. It is organized by the "Strength Through Joy" movement, and the workers and their families will travel on German liners. Many of them have never seen the sea. Last year the "Strength Through Joy" movement sent 80,000 workers on sea voyages, and this year it is hoped to send 160,000.

The earth's population is doubling about every 30 years. At this rate, there will be 2,600,000,000 persons on earth before the year 2000 A.D. is hoped to send 160,000.

Believed to be 2,000 years old, a dugout canoe has been found at Gosh-mura, Japan.

Little Journeys In Science

GOLD

(By Gordon H. Quest, M.A.)

The use of gold dates from earliest times and it is probable that it was one of the first metals used by man. Native gold occurs in veins running through quartz rock and also in the sands of streams whose sands have been formed from the breaking down of such gold-bearing quartz. It has been discovered in nuggets which vary in size from a tiny pebble to a mass weighing over a hundred pounds. In the past few years the gold production of the world has amounted to about $400,000,000 annually. Of this amount South Africa produces over half.

Native gold is obtained in crude form by placer mining. The sand containing the gold is shaken or stirred in troughs of running water, called sluices. The sand is swept aside leaving the heavier gold at the bottom of the sluice. Sometimes the sand containing the gold is washed away from its natural location into the sluices by powerful streams of water delivered under pressure from pipes. This method of securing gold is called hydraulic mining. The gold is then separated from the sand by either the amalgamation or the cyanide process.

In the amalgamation process the powder containing the gold is washed over copper plates whose surfaces have been amalgamated with mercury. The gold sticks to the mercury or alloys with it, and after a time the gold and mercury are scraped off and the mercury is distilled. The mercury distills off leaving the gold behind in the retort ready for refining. The cyanide process depends upon the fact that gold is soluble in a solution of sodium cyanide in the presence of the oxygen of the air. The powder from the stamping mills is treated with a very dilute sodium cyanide solution which dissolves the gold. The sludge is obtained from this solution by electrolysis.

Gold is a yellow metal which is 19.3 times heavier than water. It is the most malleable and ductile of all the metals. It is also the most precious of a metal to be hammered or rolled into sheets and gold has been hammered out into sheets so thin that it requires 280,000 leaves placed one upon another to occupy the thickness of an inch, and furthermore one ounce can be hammered out so as to cover 180 square feet. Ductility is the property which most metals possess and it is this property which wires and gold is so ductile that one ounce can be drawn into a wire about 1/2 mile long.

Pure gold is used as gold leaf. The metal is too soft to be used alone except for jewelry. It is alloyed with silver or copper. The fineness of gold is usually expressed in terms of carats. 24 carats gold is pure, while 15 carats (75 per cent) is the grade used for the best jewelry.

Ethnologist Tells About Queer Ideas Of African Tribes

Frederick G. Carmichael, ethnologist, has returned to New York from an Africa sojourn and explained, among other things, how the Wom-yamvri tribes christen their babies by the meese method and what happens to a tribesman's wife when her spouse gets hurt in the hunt. "At a christening ceremony, he said, the high priest holds the baby and calls off the names of its ancestors. When the child sneezes as it invariably does, it is an indication that an ancestor's soul has entered its body and is one of the names of the ancestor thus saluted."

When a member of the tribe is hurt on a hunt, said Carmichael, the wife is blamed and is given a knock on the back of the head to make amends.

Extensive Salvage Plan

Attempt To Refloat Ships At Bottom Of White Sea

Twenty ships resting at the bottom of the White Sea since the years of the Great War will again see the light of day according to the schedule of a special board of engineers working day and night on plans for the refloating, cargo salvaging and junking. Although complete maps of the White Sea prepared at the port of Archangel exactly designate the resting places of no less than 114 ships which went down in the same period, only twenty are considered technically possible to salvage.

Canadian macaroni imported into the British Isles has become so popular that this Canadian export has reached to within measurable distance of the big supplies from Italy and France.

"Well, hardly," agreed Dad. "Is that all, Louise?"

"Very nearly," she says. "Let me know what time Nancy will arrive at Colorado Springs, and I will send some trustworthy person to meet her with an automobile, as Pine Ridge is on a branch road and our only train leaves early in the morning. If no one greets her on arrival, instruct her, please, to sit quietly in the station until called for."

A girlish chuckle escaped Aunt Judy.

"You can check yourself in the parlor room, Nance! Proceed, Louise. I beg pardon for interrupting."

Jack winked at one aunt as the other retorted: "You're as bad as the children, Judith. But there's not much more. She says: 'I feel sure that this experience will improve your daughter.' How's that, James?"

Said Dad, with spirit: "Why on earth should she imagine that our Nance needs improvement?"

"And how would she get it in a little one-horse western town?" asked Mother.

"This way," smiled Aunt Louise, reverting to the subject: "She would get away from the narrow New England viewpoint. She would learn something about the vastness of her country."

"I suppose she means those 'great open spaces' we read about," laughed Jack, while his aunt, ignoring him, continued:

"The milder climate would improve her health, and she would experience the satisfaction of being self-supporting. Please write at once, and believe me, dear James, your affectionate though unseen cousin, Columbine Nelson."

Aunt Louise looked up. "Well," she declared, drawing a deep breath, "I call that the—very limit!"

For this meticulous teacher of English to use an expression even remotely approaching slang, was an event in itself. Her family smiled, and Nance retorted: "It's plain, Aunt Lou, that this is an occasion when Webster's Unabridged is totally inadequate! Dad dear, how can this venerable lady be your first cousin? And did she acquire her outlandish name because columbines are the state flower of Colorado?"

"Better look up your history, my dear," replied her father. "Cousin Columbine must be over seventy and Colorado didn't become a state until 1876. I'll admit that I probably remember the date because it's also the year that I was born," he added honestly.

"But how," asked Jack, "did an uncle of yours land way off in the wild West, Dad?"

"You've heard the story numberless times, son."

"Not for a long while, and I never gave it any special thought. Seems queer for one lone member of a family to start off for the wilderness. How'd it happen?"

James Nelson glanced at his sister, and she said: "As I recall the story, Father's half-brother, Jethro

Nelson, who was a good bit older than the others, possessed the wanderlust. He yearned to see something besides his native New Hampshire, and as his young wife was fired with the same ambition, they started West in a covered wagon, drawn by oxen unless my memory's at fault."

"Alone?" questioned the boy, leaning forward.

"Oh, no! There were three other wagons in the caravan, or whatever they called it. Part of those pioneers turned back somewhere in Kansas, frightened, I believe, by the immensity of the prairie. Others pushed on to California; but it was rumormongered in the Colorado mountains that hured Uncle Jed in that direction, and unlooked-for circumstances which made him stop where he did. Of course it wasn't Pine Ridge then—just unsettled wilderness. But the journey had proved too hard on his wife, and instead of reaching some settlement, Denver or possibly Aurora (which was flourishing because of the gold rush) for the event, her baby was born in a covered wagon at the spot which was later to be called Pine Ridge."

"And that baby was Cousin Columbine?" asked Nancy.

Her aunt nodded, while Dad took up the narrative.

"Here's where her name comes in, daughter. Early next morning Uncle Jed discovered some enormous blue and white columbines growing nearby and carried the whole clump in to the new mother. The story goes that she uttered an exclamation of rapture at their beauty, and cried out: 'Columbine! I know now what we'll call our little daughter!'"

"Do you suppose," asked Jack, "if he'd presented her with a cactus blossom she'd have named her baby Cactacoccus?"

"Goodness gracious, boy, have you no sentiment?" reproved Aunt Judy. "And the fact that you're becoming studying botany cries aloud. Cactacoccus! I never heard the word before."

"Nor I," admitted Mother. "But do you mean to say, Jim, that a man who possessed the wanderlust, content to stay right where Father landed him for the rest of his natural life?"

"Indeed no," spoke up Aunt Louise, "and in my opinion Uncle Jed's poor wife had a lonely time of it. He was forever leaving her to seek gold, silver, and adventure. That was, I imagine, after other settlers joined them. Years later he did strike silver at Leadville; but his wife had died of hardship before that. 'I believe she never saw the 'mansions' Cousin Columbine's so proud of. Uncle Jed was the big man of the town in Pine Ridge then, though the place can't be much more than a settlement now. Anyway, it isn't on the map."

"And she expects us to send Nancy to place him that 'great Mother. I didn't realize it was so isolated."

"But it's home to Cousin Columbine," observed Aunt Judy, "and perhaps she's lonely."

"I wonder if she'd be satisfied with me?" suggested Jack. "I have a touch of this wanderlust myself."

"You'd make a swell dreamer!" jeered his sister; and then, being called to the telephone by one of the admirers of whom Cousin Columbine would disapprove, promptly forgot the matter.

CHAPTER III.

Now, meeting Jack's eager eyes as he perched on the foot of her antique four-poster, the memory of that family dinner all rushed back. Regardless of the cold air and a sleepless pink crepe nightgown, Nance sat up, startled, and stared at her brother in dismay.

"Why, Jack Nelson! You—you're not implying that I ought to go way off to Colorado just for a paltry twenty-five dollars a month, are you?"

"Pipe down," warned Jack, "or like as not Mother'll come butting in, and I want to talk things over with you first. I can't sleep, Nance. I keep thinking about Dad. You know how he is—always seeing the bright side of everything; but he admitted to-night that he was down and out. That means that broke, doesn't it?"

And even if I got some sort of job it probably wouldn't much more than pay my car fares and lunches for a year or two. And there's your—sorry a parlor ornament and—"

"Thanks!" broke in the sister coldly, sliding down under the covers again. "You don't need to rub it in just now, do you?"

"I don't intend to rub in anything; but there's no need of side-stepping the truth, either. I suppose you could help Mother 'round the house, but with Aunt Judy gone, and Aunt Lou home only Sundays, there won't be an awful lot to do."

"I've a notion she'd rather keep busy anyway, so's not to think about things. I suppose she's just about heart-broken over you."

Nancy said nothing for a moment; then: "Do you think it will add to her happiness if I'm two thousand miles away, all alone, living with a queer old woman we've never seen, and dying of homesickness?"

"No," said Jack. "I think she'd worry herself sick. But if you weren't alone, Nance—if I went too—"

"You!" interrupted the girl, amazed. "Why, how do you know that Cousin Columbine would take you in?"

Jack hitched an inch or two nearer, his eyes bright with interest.

"I don't expect her to; but she might get me a job on some ranch. Sis, I've always been crazy to see the West; and with us both away earning our own living, things would be easier for Dad and Mother."

"But you said yourself, Jack, that what Cousin Columbine wanted was a slave!"

"Oh, forget it. I was just talking. If she has a woman come in every day of the week, can't she kill you and I if I were near enough to we'd get together every little while, and it wouldn't be so bad. And we'd be helping Dad, Nance. Honestly helping. He wouldn't even have to feed us!"

The girl gave way to a reluctant smile.

"Is my appetite as fearful a thing as that? Why you talk as if we'd have to apply to the Salvation Army for Christmas dinner! Dad can't be so hard up that we'll have to worry about food, Jack."

"But it costs less to support three than five, my dear. You can't get away from that. If you say the word I'll send an air mail letter to Cousin Columbine to-morrow. I'll explain what's happened, and ask if I can get a job out there. We needn't say a word to Mother until we hear from her. I'll ask her to telegraph."

Nancy looked at the boy curiously, as if she were observing a stranger. Jack was only seventeen, and his sister had always regarded him with the tolerance nineteen bestows upon a younger brother. Now, suddenly, he seemed older than herself, for at the first hint of trouble he had put his shoulder to the wheel. It made Nancy feel a bit ashamed of herself, for she knew that it was not Jack's boyish curiosity to see the West which caused him to make this plan, but a genuine desire to help his father.

"Well?" he questioned with impatience.

The girl drew in a quivering breath.

"Do—do you think we must, Jack? I'll admit that the idea—terrifies me."

"Oh, be your age, Nance! We're not going into darkest Africa, and I know, but it's so awfully far away. Suppose we got sick—had appendicitis or something."

Jack laughed softly.

"The only way you'll get appendicitis is by over-eating! We never have been sick—either of us—so why worry? I don't say it'll be all fun by any means; but we will be learning something about the country, as the old lady said; and it's not a life sentence. We'll come home soon as Dad gets his business straightened out. Be a sport, Sis, and let me write the letter."

"Without asking Dad—or Mother?"

He nodded.

"There'll be time enough to talk it over when we hear from Cousin Columbine. Like as not she'll veto the whole scheme; but even if they won't consent after we've made our plans, Nance, no harm will be done."

"Well," agreed Nancy with sudden resolution, "go on and write."

"That's the stuff!"

Jack slid his long legs off the bed and proceeded, as noiselessly as possible to open the windows again.

"Night, Sis. I know you'd see sense after I showed it to you. And don't you dare let on we're up to anything. Keep mum."

It was not so hard to "keep mum" as Nancy expected. The next few days were strenuous ones for the older members of the family, and the answering letter from Colorado was completely forgotten. Jack, who did not return to Exeter on Monday, spent two of those days driving his mother and Aunt Judy to Edgemere in his beloved "Mary Ann," so they could look into conditions at the old home and decide what furniture must be sent out from the city.

Reclamation Work

Expenditure Of Half A Million Dollars In Saskatchewan

Federal government drought area reclamation work will involve the expenditure of approximately half a million dollars in Saskatchewan this season, according to unofficial information obtained at Regina. This will involve activity in three main phases, namely: (1) construction of dams and excavation of small dugouts and reservoirs; (2) establishment of numerous agricultural illustration stations; and (3) organization of township areas in the province.

According to draft plans, the erection of dams and excavations of reservoirs will be accomplished through bonding farmers and ranchers in the drought areas on a guarantee basis for the work they do.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

ROUGH AND LEVEL GROUND

She never showed her weariness,
Nor did her courage wane;
Her look was like a lifted flag,
Her voice was hope's refrain.

She let no longings conquer her;
But always took with pride
The things which with the bitter
That life will not divide.

For she was wise enough to know
Since Earth was first begun
The kind and cruel, side by side,
Through being's tide has run.

The things of dread, the things of dream
She took with equal grace,
And some still more deep than these
Was shining on her face.

The sweet and bitter come to all
And with a faith profound
She took them as a runner takes
The rough and level ground.

Theory About Dust Storms

U.S. Navy Astronomer Says Winds Are Drought Period

The dust storms, we are assured by the Navy astronomer, Captain T. J. J. See, are a proof that the winds have returned that bring rain to the earth. He tells us that the drought period ended last August and that the terrific winds that have been scouring the soil from our Western plains are prophets of good rather than evil. Moreover, he foretells no more drought for seven years. But, alas, the bow of promise spans vast regions' damaged past recovery—

Treatment Was Success

"Twilight Narcosis" New Cure For Mild Mental Cases

Twilight sleep for men as well as women, during mild insanity of both sexes, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association, at Washington.

Several successful cases were described, including one that might be called "stock marketitis," a man caught in the 1929 crash, who was not only broke mentally but was in physical pain.

This form of sleep, which he called "twilight narcosis," was described by A. L. Kroog, M.D., of Kansas City. He gives patients a form of sodium amytal, which puts them into a condition resembling drugged sleepiness.

They can speak occasionally, but are mostly too drowsy even for that. This condition lasts for hours, during which the physician talks to them. His words are the only treatment.

The businessman who cracked up after 1929 was worried, slept poorly, was unable to work, had pain in the back and other places, shrivelling of some parts of his body, and spells of fear.

Examination showed no disease. He was put to sleep twice 12 days apart. Both times his physician talked, telling him he could hope for full recovery, that he had no internal disorders, that he was not shrivelled and that his brain was normal.

A few weeks of rest followed and the man recovered. He became healthy and returned to business.

First Gliding By Night

Member Of London Club Made A Perfect Landing

A member of the London Gliding Club, C. Nicholson, has done what is believed to be the first gliding by night in the United Kingdom. Hurricane lamps, placed on the highest points of the downs by members of the club, and the moon shining, too, enabled Nicholson to make the flight in safety. Clouds came over the moon after he had been in the air about 40 minutes, and he decided to land.

A flash-lamp which Nicholson carried, and the head-lamps of a motor car, were used to exchange messages between the pilot and members of the London Gliding Club on the ground. Aided by motor car lights and the hurricane lamps the glider made a perfect landing.

Have Four-Hour Day

Members of the Munich Bird Society of Munich, Germany, have discovered that storks flying south to escape the European winter travel only four hours a day, spending the other 20 in feeding, resting and sleeping. They average over 30 miles an hour in their flight of thousands of miles over the stormy airways.

A Record Achievement

Germany's Graf Zeppelin Has Crossed Ocean Nearly Times

Graf Zeppelin, Germany's veteran air-liner, has theoretically spanned the earth 24 times, if you figure out the mileage covered by it during 423 trips in 9,817 hours in the air.

This record achievement was noted on the occasion of the resumption of the South American service of the Graf after a winter interval.

The Graf Zeppelin crossed the ocean 90 times up to this year. It carried altogether around 30,000 passengers, five million pieces of mail and more than 84,000 pounds of all sorts of freight.

WILL SANS INTELLIGENCE

All this appeal to mass emotion which is being made by Wm. Aberhart, leader of the new political party in Alberta, causes a thoughtful observer of the political situation in this province to shudder at what the consequences may be, following this Barmecide excursion being promoted by the Alberta Social Credit party.

Day after day the ether is filled with promises emanating from the Calgary preacher-politician, in which Albertans are told that "poverty in the midst of plenty" will be ended forever if Alberta Social Credit forces are given the reins of government. Mr. Aberhart will not be explicit and has repeatedly refused invitations to prepare his plan for intelligent appraisal by the people of the province. He tells us, "it will work." Support has been won, and still is being invited for social credit, largely through emotional appeal, rather than through presentation of logic.

The Calgary political leader's appeal to emotion and prejudice reveals a state of mind strangely synchronized with the recently expressed belief of Major Douglas who says that governments should carry out the will, obeying the whimsical demands of the people, regardless. Whether those demands are the result of unbridled prejudices or not, the government should submit to them, says Douglas. Following such a conclusion by the major, it is obvious that members of a government would be excused from carrying to their seats in parliament any such intelligence as they might possess.

The fickleness of mass will, created through emotional appeal, is frequently recorded on the pages of history. The hero of today is the forgotten man of tomorrow. The mob transfers its affections and its endorsements with incredible speed. Major Douglas and Mr. Aberhart, then, by word and deed have indicated that they are in complete agreement on one point at least, in connection with this social credit business. Aberhart refuses to submit his social credit plan for the scrutiny of the people, and depends on emotional appeal for success. Douglas, perhaps unknowingly endorses Aberhart's tactics when he said, "the government should represent the will of the people—not the intelligence of the people."—The Hanna Herald.

Seeing her mother stricken, Mrs. Keibel was seized with a heart attack and died instantly. Mrs. Morach was hastened to the Hanna hospital, but passed away without regaining consciousness. Three were buried with one ceremony.

DECLARE WAR ON THE CROW

Editor The Enterprise

Dear Sir: It is our considered opinion that if many of the more desirable species of bird life are to be saved for the pleasure and profit of ourselves and posterity, that a more energetic and well organized effort at conservation must be made than has yet been instituted.

Many factors influence the propagation of this bird life, such as drought, and overshooting of game birds; but a vast amount of evidence has accumulated, indicating one of the most detrimental factors to be the degradations of the crow, and it is a factor concerning which something can be done.

That our citizens derive great enjoyment from our wild song birds and game birds is recognized by all, but as a valuable natural resource they are not so generally understood. Many people do not realize that they are a necessary aid to successful agriculture. Regarding the dollars spent by sportsmen in the pursuit of game, Mr. W. G. Ross, president of the Regina Fish and Game Club, states in a recent article in "Kenneb and Bench":

"Canada at least spends sixty millions, but only a small percentage of the people know about it or are aware that this is a real industry at their own doorsteps, which needs help by conservation and assistance in development."

This is a goodly sum distributed amongst our many citizens who supply the varied wants of this army of sportsmen.

The following are some comments made by outstanding naturalists and nature lovers regarding the destructive proclivities of Mr. Crow:

"The Canadian friend with whom I was shooting is a sportsman-naturalist." He estimates that under the best conditions, crows destroy 40% of the first duck eggs laid. A. E. Bengt, K.C., of Saskatoon, Sask., reports that out of twenty-four duck nests observed in one locality, the crows got the eggs out of seventeen. Dr. O. L. Austin, a scientist, when in the employ of the Bureau of Biological Survey, made a careful study of the effect of crows on waterfowl in the neighborhood of the Ornithological Research Station on Cape Cod. Dr. Austin located forty-two duck nests. One week after he had located these nests he found that crows had destroyed all but two of them. In Canada, Mr. Kalmbach (an investigator in the employ of the U.S. Bureau of Biological Survey), was successful in finding a restored lake within the dry regions, and along the banks of the lake and of the canal which formerly drained it there were a great many ducks' nests. There were a lot of crows nesting not far away. In the course of these investigations, crows in some places were found circulating around the breeding grounds, and in other places crows were actually seen attacking some ducks' nests. The crow is a bad actor. In the interest of game birds, he must be controlled. Farmers are universal in condemning him as a destroyer of crops. Bird men and sportsmen know him as an eater of eggs and fledglings; and yet, because a few long-haired anti-everything fellows contend that he does a certain amount of good when he occasionally eats a hairy caterpillar, certain individuals in authority hesitate to paint him in his true color, which is jet black."—Ray P. Holland, Editor of Field and Stream.

Our own Jack Miner, of Kingsville, Ont., writing in the "Atlantic Sportsman", makes the following statements regarding the crow:

"...but, to my surprise, they were not feeding their young on corn. As I held these old birds' up by the tail as they gasped their last, they spewed up birds' eggs; I have seen as high as seven unhatched robins pour out of the mouth or throat of a dying crow, and the little bits of life were sometimes still squirming. Dear reader, the above is only a flash of the cruel, wicked, murderous ways of these black, old nest-robbers. I don't believe there were ten per cent as many then as there are today. Moreover, I know that if one of these insectivorous or song birds were left to mature, it would do more good in ten minutes than a dirty old crow would do in a day. Oh, but you sigh and say "Jack Miner, are you sure that you know what you are writing about?" Yes, I am. I have tested it out...to the sportsmen and bird lovers of the continent let me hand this boiled-down sentence: Don't expect our desirable birds of Canada to increase until the crows are decreased."

In the light of such evidence, and of the observations which you yourselves must have made in this connection, we ask your co-operation in making the public acquainted with the facts of this urgent problem, and that you will use every means within your power to lessen the vandalism of the thugish crow. Crow-shoots, traps, and encouraging our rural school children to gather crows' eggs and young crows appear to be most effective avenues of effort.

If and when the Aberhart social credit scheme goes into effect in Alberta, old age pensions can be abolished in that Province. The young people can use their bonus of $25 a month to buy an annuity for their old age; the older ones can enjoy the modest competence, and at least survive without bothering to work. The prospect opened up by Mr. Aberhart is so alluring that there is a scramble to become naturalized citizens. They want to be in a position to vote themselves something for nothing.—Victoria Colonist.

The old buildings form part of the first business buildings erected in Blairmore, being originally the property of Capt. Beebe.

There is constant discussion on the question of the relationship of machinery to unemployment. Some claim that new machinery increases the amount of unemployment, others that it actually increases the amount of employment. R. J. Deachman, Box 321, Ottawa, has recently published a pamphlet on this question, and would be glad to send a copy to any of our readers who may be interested, free upon request.

When G. G. Coote called upon us a week ago he mentioned figures obtained from the Bureau of Statistics in which it was set forth that the average value of automobiles exported from Canada was but a little over four hundred dollars. It seems hard to compare these figures with the retail prices of cars in Canada. It is a vicious set of conditions fostered in this country when we permit an industry under protection to export its products at a lower price than that quoted the domestic Canadian buyer.—Clareholm Local Press.

The town's sprinkling system on Victoria street is proving itself a real joke, and we never will have a smooth surface to the street until the watering cart is brought into use, or the street hard-surfaced. The spray water hits spots and misses more. When it hits it gouges ruts—where it doesn't hit, a 100-per cent volume of dust is distributed. The average car passing is splattered by the present spraying system; this would not happen with the good old reliable watering cart. Only a few days ago, the Greyhound bus had to stop for a few minutes at an intersection to avoid being sprayed.

The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar, but on the 1913 basis farm product prices have never been as low as gasoline. Between 1913 and 1929 gasoline did not rise in price to nearly the same extent as farm products, yet since 1929 its price has almost continuously declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A FAIR DEAL POLICY

In the fifty-four years of its existence, Imperial Oil Limited has always welcomed legislation in the interests of labor and the basic industries. It has never had a labor dispute. It has always paid fair wages. To the greatest extent possible it has provided continuous employment and it has given its workers increasing leisure so as to expand employment. It has sickness and death benefits and old age pensions because it believes that the worker and his dependents are entitled to such protection.

Imperial Oil has always tried to deal fairly with collateral industry and with its competitors. Its success in this connection is indicated by the fact that it has never had a major lawsuit. It has always recognized the principle that the only satisfactory business transaction is the one which affords a fair profit to all parties concerned. It has fulfilled all its undertakings. It has enforced no onerous claims on others.

Imperial Oil has always tried to deal fairly with the consumer. It has continuously improved the quality and steadily reduced the prices of its products. It has invested millions to make those products always available wherever they may be needed.

In 1934 Imperial Oil earned $3,025,400.12 from its Canadian manufacturing and marketing operations. This, you may say, is a lot of money, but to earn that amount Imperial Oil had to make and market goods to a value of $82,841,511.15. The stockholder who in the course of a year sold $8,280 worth of goods and made a profit of $500 would not be regarded as enjoying an undue measure of prosperity.

But his ratio of profit to the total volume of his business would be the same as Imperial Oil's.

It has been Imperial Oil's practice to "make wisely, measure truly, trade justly" for this it believes to be the secret of success.

The child sat by the road, bawling loudly. A passerby asked him what was the matter. "Ma, she's gone and drowned the kittens" the boy wailed. "Oh, isn't that too bad!" was the sympathetic response. The child bawled the louder: "An' ma, she promised me that I could drown 'em."

Bright Stories about Wine

IN VINO VERITAS

● We read the other day a curious book called: "The Wine Room Murder", by Stanley Vestal. We do not recommend it to wine drinkers although it develops a theory that might be interesting to many of them, and particularly to wine growers. The hero of the story is a wine bibber who undertakes to solve a murder, and works on the principle that there is a wine for every mental mood. If he wishes to be reflective there is a wine; if he wishes to be intensely on the alert there is another, and if he wishes to plunge himself in a state in which every outside impression will register, there is still another wine that will help to this end.

● Similarly, he argued that different wines would induce different moods in the persons who were suspected and that on the whole the old Latin saying that in wine there is truth, is sound, and can be turned to practical use. There is, of course, something fantastic to the Canadian in his ascription of special virtues to special vintages. To the real European epicure there is as much difference between, let us say, a Burgundy and a Medoc, as Canadians would find between sarsaparilla and ginger ale, or cider and rye. The real wine connoisseurs drink wines not for what we call the "kick", but for somewhat the same kind of pleasure that they derive from a picture gallery. There will be a vast improvement in the habits of Canadians if ever we reach that stage of civilization.

"What shall I do?" waited the sweet young thing. "I'm engaged to a man who just cannot bear children."

Leaders And Critics

In the face of enormous difficulties, which are the direct outcome of the Great War and the aftermath of depression following that terrible struggle, as more or less similar conditions have followed every great war in history, recognized leaders of men in all nations are striving mightily to bring order out of disorder and start the world on the road of progress and prosperity. Men are breaking down because of the burdens of responsibility they are carrying, and they are wearing themselves out mentally and physically in the effort to serve their fellow countrymen and the world.

In his almost superhuman struggle to maintain peace in Europe, and in his untiring efforts to promote disarmament, Ramsay MacDonald has become a much older man than his years. Reports that he must relinquish the premiership are now ripe.

In Canada, Hon. R. B. Bennett has for five years devoted his every waking moment to the duties and responsibilities of government. People may criticize his policies and his methods, they may say he should have divided responsibility to a far greater extent with his cabinet colleagues instead of shouldering so much of the burden himself. But no one can say that as Prime Minister he has not given himself wholeheartedly and energetically to the discharge of the public duties and responsibilities placed in his care. As a result he has had a serious breakdown in health, may have to retire, and he has unquestionably considerably shortened his life.

Ex-President Hoover and President Roosevelt aged far beyond their years in office; the same can be said of the leaders of other nations, and it is true of men not only in the Federal arena in Canada but in the provinces and in municipal affairs. The strain is terrible, and men everywhere are paying the price. Yet they carry on because it is their duty to do so, and because they are sincerely desirous of rendering service to their country and fellowmen.

Probably because the great mass of people have difficulties and worries of their own to contend against and face, few of them give thought and little consideration to the manifold and gigantic problems which leaders in government everywhere are endeavoring to solve. Rather, men in public life are the targets for all kinds of misuses of abuse and criticism, and their task is made much more difficult by the carping complaints of men of less calibre and by demagogues and agitators who take advantage of the prevailing situation to stir up the untimely masses for their own selfish and ulterior motives and designs.

Recently in a little known publication there appeared one of the type of articles which make a sane man disgusted. The writer thereof urged people to read history. He declared that in every great crisis heretofore, and everywhere, a man had arisen to lead the way out, and cited that "Moses, Christ, Pym, Abraham Lincoln, were real leaders because they did new things, utterly regardless of what had been done before." He then added that at Ottawa two Norons, meaning Mr. Bennett and Mr. King, are adding while the economic capital burns. Surely, he says, after five years of labor Canada should at last bring forth a man.

This writer cites Moses. He was a great leader, but his people turned against him, commenced the worship of false idols, a calf of gold, and paid the penalty of forty years wandering in the wilderness.

The writer speaks of the Christ. He was the world's greatest leader of all time. Yet the people of his day rejected him and demanded his death. Abraham Lincoln was a leader, but throughout his life was criticised and vilified, accused of being a partizan, and died at the hands of an assassin.

History applauds these leaders, and their names will live forever, but in their day and generation they were despised and rejected by many, the objects of criticism and derision, and their work for humanity made difficult by the spite and hatred of other so-called leaders who played upon the ignorance, the emotions and the selfishness of the masses.

The historians of the future will probably accord to the world leaders of to-day a much more honorable place, and give credit where it is due, than the pettifogging critics of to-day are willing or capable of according to them. The names and deeds of these leaders will be recalled long after those of their present day critics have passed into oblivion and from the memories of man.

These leaders have made mistakes. Of course they have, because they are human with all the limitations and frailties of human beings. But many of their mistakes were not of their own volition, but were forced upon them by the acts of others, either not so sincere and hard minded or who with less vision and ability adopted policies and followed courses of action which compelled others to steps which the latter knew to be mistaken but nevertheless had to be taken to avoid some possibly greater mistake and disaster.

The present is a time for patience and tolerance. It is no time for any well meaning person to be rocking the ship. That should be left to the wholly misguided and the irresponsible agitators. Constructive criticism is in order, and it is always welcomed by those entrusted with grave responsibilities. But Canada should give short shift to all carping critics who merely seek to destroy what others are striving to reconstruct and build up stronger and better.

For the 18 weeks of 1935 ended May 2, the total number of hogs graded in Canada was—graded alive at stock yards, 383,664; alive at packing plants, 700,726; and by carcass 21,602, a total of 1,115,042. For the corresponding weeks of 1934, the number was 1,160,223.

In the Aurignacian period of the Old Stone Age, 60,000 years ago, men in Europe were very tall, averaging just over six feet in height.

When roughly handled, toads play dead so thoroughly that their breathing movements are entirely suspended.

Approximately 90,000 newspapers and magazines are published in the world today, as compared to 4,000 a century ago.

A Silver Jubilee Gift

Merchants Serving Royal Family Build House For King

King George, who already owns a palace, a castle and two huge estates, has received a house as a Silver Jubilee present. It is a gift of the Royal Warrant Holders' Association, whose members have served the royal household with groceries, furniture and everything else, and who are entitled to display the royal coat of arms over their stores.

The architect is C. Beresford Marshall, a young and comparatively unknown designer of thirty-six years, who up to now has been designing luxury apartments on the American plan in London.

Marshall's design is something like the American Colonial style without the pillars. It is being built at Burhill, Surrey, about thirty miles from London, on the estate of Lord Iveagh.

There is one principal bedroom and two guest rooms, with two double rooms for maids and a chauffeur's room.

The design was chosen by the King in consultation with Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, president of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

It is not likely, however, that the King will live in the house. In such cases he usually makes a present of the life-tenancy of the house to some minor member of the royal family, or to a high court official who is retiring from his service.

HE FELT MISERABLE AFTER MEALS

Acute Indigestion Relieved By Kruschen

The treatment which put this man right must surely be worth trying in every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion, flatulence, and a most severe pain in my back. Food soured in my stomach. I felt most miserable after meals, and had no desire or appetite for food. A friend advised me to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief. I continued taking Kruschen till I felt my appetite begin to return. Now I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—W. B.

What Kruschen did for him it will do for everybody else who suffers from indigestion as he did. The fact is that the "little daily dose" of Kruschen first stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion, and then ensures a complete, regular and unflinching elimination of all waste matter every day.

Preventing Spread Of Disease

Passengers On English Air Lines Must Have Health Certificate

Air passengers in the future will be treated like beef being examined and stamped at the port of departure, according to Mr. M. Cadman, of Hull, England. In a conference in that city he declared that to prevent diseases being spread round the world by airplanes, passengers eventually would not be permitted to travel unless each carried a clean bill of health in documentary form.

Fruit-a-tives Gave Veteran Quick Relief From Constipation

Isaac P. Booth, 70 Wayland Ave., Toronto, relates in a sworn statement how Fruit-a-tives gave him quick relief from constipation and rheumatism brought on by military service. So that everyone can be sure of the truth, he told his experience under oath before a notary. Mr. Booth says: "I was greatly bothered with constipation brought on by military service. I tried Fruit-a-tives and they gave me quick relief and now keep me regular. I also suffered from rheumatism. Since I have used Fruit-a-tives, it does not bother me any more unless I take foolish chances in wet or cold weather." Copy of Mr. Booth's statement upon oath will be sent on request. ABSOLUTE PARITY IN THE AIR IS AIM OF BRITAIN

London. — Previously announced plans to expand the Royal Air Force were put in the shade by the government's announcement to parliament.

The domestic air force of first-line machines will be tripled within two years, whereas the first program called for some increases over five years. The new plan doubles within two years the number of machines at home that would have been furnished at the end of five years.

First-line fighters, bombers and transports will be increased to 840 in five years, will be increased to 1,500 by March 1937. Fifteen hundred planes, absolute parity with Germany and France is the goal.

That goal the British government determined to reach and announced, the House of Commons and the House of Lords were told by Stanley Baldwin and Lord Londonderry, respective government spokesmen in the two houses.

The government rode roughshod over a Labor party amendment to reduce the huge air expansion expenditures by a vote of 340 to 52.

Mr. Baldwin found several points in the speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler which he thought offered promise. In several directions Hitler had defined the German attitude. Points of his speech, "domestic and the closest and frankest statement of all of us," he said, "We shall not fail to do our utmost to bring about in all directions all that is possible by international agreement."

Chief of Hitler's points meeting with approval was the statement of the council, was his willingness to conclude an air convention supplementing the Locarno treaty, with the indication it could be accompanied by an agreement on limitation of planes.

Next was Hitler's indication the air pact might be found bound up with an effort to safeguard the civilian population against indiscriminate attack from the air.

Britain's defence requirements in the air had been given the most careful study, Mr. Baldwin added, and parity in the air was necessary to secure the two objects most desired by Britain—some form of collective security like Locarno, and some method of limitation. He endorsed Hitler's stand that limitation could best be achieved starting from parity, than if different nations set arithmetical figures of their needs without relation to others.

Plane Victims Buried

Moscow Mourns Those Who Died In Maxim Gorky Crash

Moscow.—The people of Moscow, in one of their greatest demonstrations of public grief, thronged to the new Virgin monastery and deposited the remains of the 49 victims of the Maxim Gorky disaster in crypts and graves.

The remains of Pilot Nikolai Blagin, who caused the world's worst aeroplane disaster by crashing into the Gorky while stunting in violation of orders, found a place of honor in burial with the others.

Although he had been held up to the public as an "air hoodlum," his ashes lay in state with the others when Joseph Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, stood his turn as guard of honor in the Hall of Columns of the Labor Union house.

New Aviation Record

Three Million Miles Of Flying By U.S. Air Fleet

Hawaii.—Three million miles of flying over the north Pacific will have been accomplished during the six weeks of naval manoeuvres to be completed with the arrival of the United States fleet at San Diego, June 10.

Officers said this establishes a new record in aviation, with the flying under all kinds of weather and in varying conditions in the different areas of the 5,000,000 square miles between Alaska and Hawaii, and midway, and the Pacific coast.

Amendment Defeated

Ottawa.—The senate banking and commerce committee defeated an amendment which would compel all persons in Canada receiving net annual incomes of $2,000 or more to contribute 20 cents a week or $13 a year to the Dominion unemployment insurance fund.

Ban Silver Coin Imports

Canadian Money Not Affected By U.S. Government Order

Washington.—A ban against imports of foreign silver coins was declared by the United States government in what was officially described as a "spirit of co-operation" with nations harassed by high silver prices.

Canadian money was not affected by the government's order forbidding entry into this country of foreign silver coins. The only coinage involved was that where silver content has become more valuable as bullion than in the form of currency. Peru is the largest country affected by the embargo, which also will apply to metal currencies of several other nations. A list of such countries now is being prepared.

The step was taken by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the treasury shortly after he had disclosed new researches into money conditions abroad and stated flatly no country has made currency stabilization overtures since his guarded invitation a week ago.

The silver coin embargo on all except licensed entries was designed to aid those nations which—largely through the price-raising silver buying policy of the United States government—are confronted with the problem of preventing the melting of their coins for sale as bullion.

Bush Huskies Kill Boy

Six-Year-Old Child Attacked At The Pas

The Pas, Man.—Torn by a pack of bush-bred husky dogs on the outskirts of The Pas, six-year-old Mike Seginovich died in hospital. The animals, owned by a local trapper, were brought in from the bush north of The Pas a short time ago. The cause of their attack is unknown.

With Joe Kryschuk, another lad of his own age, little Mike had been playing on an unused trail near his home. First intimation of the tragedy came to Mrs. Kryschuk when her son came running, shouting to her the dogs were killing Mike.

Mrs. Kryschuk found four dogs swarming over the child on the ground and, driving them off, carried him to her home nearby. The animals followed her as she carried the mangled boy along the trail. An inquest will be held.

Extending Service Term

Belgium Government Will Lengthen Time For Military Service

Brussels.—The government of Belgium will demand 18-month compulsory military service instead of the present one-year term, Albert Devaux, defence minister, revealed in a speech at Mons.

Under the present system, he said, there were long periods when the army was composed chiefly of new recruits, and the country had been alarmed by Germany's restoration of conscription.

Though the defence minister referred specifically only to the machine gun forces, informed circles here interpreted his remarks to mean the cabinet would ask lengthened service for all branches of the army. He said also the government was pushing completion of border defences as rapidly as possible.

Lord Bessborough Honored

Presented With The Highest Award In Scouting

Ottawa.—In recognition of his services in his capacity of chief scout for Canada, Lord Bessborough was presented with the "Silver Wolf," highest award in scouting, it was announced. The presentation was made by Lord Robert Baden-Powell, chief scout, while on his visit here.

John A. Stiles, chief executive commissioner of the Canadian Boy Scouts Association, was similarly honored.

Playing Host To Teachers

French-Canadians To Spend Month In Toronto Learning English

Toronto.—Establishing a precedent in the educational history of Ontario and Quebec, 100 French-Canadian teachers will come here this summer to spend a month learning English. For the past nine years it has been the practice of the Ontario department of education to send Ontario teachers to Quebec city to live among French-Canadians and learn the language and this year Ontario will play host to Quebec teachers.

Ramsey MacDonald May Hand Over Leadership

Reconstruction Of British Cabinet Likely To Take Place

London.—Rumors of a cabinet reconstruction to take place next month have been intensified. Speculation and gossip were keen in the lobbies of the House of Commons.

Several morning newspapers asserted it was definitely decided that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald would hand over the leadership of the government to Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, in June. It was believed, however, the prospect changes would not be announced before Whitsuntide.

When the combined king's birthday and jubilee honors list is published June 3, it is expected at least two members of the cabinet will be elevated to the peerage. They are Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for the colonies, and Sir John Gilmour, home secretary. Informed political quarters said this meant the reconstruction naturally would fall during the Whitsun holiday, which comes June 9.

CURRENCY DUMP MEASURE TO DEAL WITH COMPLAINTS

Ottawa.—Legislation designed to adjust inequalities arising from application of the currency dump against imports from countries which have a high cost of living because of depreciated currency, such as had recently been the subject of protests from Japan, was promised by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in the house of commons. Other measures which he said would be laid before the house shortly included seven or eight bills arising from the report of the mass buying commission, and a housing bill.

Of particular interest was Mr. Bennett's reference to the exchange measure dealing with complaints raised by Japan that the currency dump in Canada constituted a barrier to trade already much over-balanced in favor of Canada, and with similar conditions that might affect other countries.

The bill, the prime minister said, "will confer upon the government power to deal with the problem of what are called clearing house agreements and the purchase of commodities through the use of exchange arising from the sale in our markets of commodities of other countries."

Five measures dealing with the mass buying report would be placed on the order paper, Mr. Bennett said, and there would probably be two or three more dealing with the same subject. These measures have been the subject of long consideration by experts of the external affairs and justice departments and will be handled by various ministers. Their contents have been kept secret and will not be made known until the bills appear in the House of Commons. It is understood the report of the commission will be implemented to the fullest possible extent consistent with constitutional authority of the federal government.

"BIRDMAN" TO RISK DEATH AGAIN

Undismayed by the failure of his wing harness on the first attempt, William Picou, 19, above, of North Bergen, will make another try from an altitude of 10,000 feet. His first effort narrowly missed ending in tragedy when the device failed to check his fall and Picou was saved by his parachute.

COMPLETES LONG TASK

For thirty years Colonel Wedgwood, prominent British Parliamentarian, has been writing the History of Parliament, and has now completed the work. He worked on this colossal task for years, and only recently has had the help of a joint Parliamentary Committee. It is expected that publication costs will amount to $75,000.

Hitler Conspiration Decree

German-Canadian Club Members Will Not Respond

London, Ont.—With Jews and Catholics members of London's German-Canadian Club greeted announcement of the clause in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's conspiracy decree which declares that all Germans between the ages of 18 and 45, who have become foreign citizens, must return to the Reich for training.

"Adolf Hitler might not recognize our Canadian citizenship," said Henry Wolfe, secretary of the club, speaking for his conferees, "but we do. Canada to us means home. We had to lose everything if we return to Germany. We gain nothing if we go."

Elephant Kills Trainer

Veteran Circus Man Fatally Hurt When Herd Stampeded

Los Angeles.—Attacked and gored by an enraged elephant during rehearsal of an act for a motion picture, Joe Reed, veteran circus trainer, died in a hospital.

Reed was putting a herd of eight elephants and 12 tigers through the act at the Al. G. Barnes winter quarters when the elephants stampeded and "Prince," leader of the herd, charged the trainer. He tried to climb to safety on a light pole in the centre of the lot, but the animal, breaking loose its heavy chains, gored him three times with its tusks. Attendants subdued the elephant.

Chicago.—Jane Addams, internationally known social worker and champion of world peace, died in Passavant hospital, where she had undergone a major operation.

Wheat Conference Opens

May Be Argentina's Last Chance To Agree To Acceptable Plan

London.—Delegates to the international wheat conference expressed the opinion that Argentina may find her last opportunity in the current negotiations to enter a wheat export restriction agreement on equal terms.

They warned that Canada and the United States, now that the period of relief given the glutted market by the 1934 drought has passed, will never again allow their stocks to accumulate to the extent they did in 1933.

A trade war of underselling was forecast in some quarters in the event Argentina declines to subscribe to some plan acceptable to the other conferees.

The conference will attempt to salvage whatever is possible from the wreckage of the 1933 pact, which expires August 1. United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham will preside over the party, for which delegates from 15 countries have assembled.

For Safer X-Ray Work

Steps Being Taken To Help Correct Electrical Hazards

Ottawa.—The National Research Council's associate committee on radiology has decided on steps designed to help correct electrical hazards for operators and patients existing in X-ray equipment in Canada.

In an effort to promote safer operation of X-ray equipment the committee approved publication of a brochure on the subject by B. G. Ballard, electrical engineer of the council's staff.

HITLER DECLARES GERMANY WANTS QUIET AND PEACE

Berlin.—Adolf Hitler told the former allies that Germany would abide by all but the military sections of the Versailles treaty and would not scruple to scrap of submarine. In an impassioned address to the specially assembled Reichstag, Hitler denounced the Versailles treaty as responsible for Europe's current armaments race.

"Germany has no intention of arming to the skies," he declared, "and an uneasy world that he wants 'quiet and peace.'"

Der Reichsfuehrer spoke in the Kroll opera house, with 608 brown and black-shirted deputies and a group of ambassadors busily taking notes before him. His words were broadcast throughout Germany and much of Europe.

Along with his offer to halt Germany re-armament at a level to be decided, Hitler again solemnly promised Germany would not unilaterally alter boundaries fixed by the treaty of Versailles. This was his only reference to Germany's former colonies.

The reich, he said, was ready to sign a treaty limiting the size and caliber of naval cannon and submarines. The fuehrer added that a navy 35 per cent. the size of Great Britain was all Germany would ask.

He scathingly denounced other powers for violating the peace treaty's arms limitations, thus forcing the reich to re-arm.

Hitler was thunderously cheered as he pronounced his eagerly awaited words on foreign policy.

"If Germany of to-day favors peace," he said, "it favors it neither out of weakness nor cowardice. We decree every war for the subjugation of foreign powers."

"If the nations are so concerned about numerically increasing their population, they can accomplish this through an increasing readiness to bring forth offspring and can, in a few years, present their nation with more children of their own people than they could foreign peoples vanquished by war."

"Naz Germany wants peace from a primitive realization that no war would be calculated to alleviate the essentially general European distress, but would tend, on the contrary, to increase it."

"Germany is immersed in the tremendous work of repairing its domestic damages. None of our subjects of a factual nature will be completed before 10 or 20 years. None of our tasks of an ideal nature can find its fulfillment before 50 or even 100 years."

"What else could I desire but quiet and peace?"

RELIEF CAMP REGULATIONS ARE GIVEN IN REPORT

Ottawa.—Government policy on relief camps operated by the department of national defence gives those employed therein complete freedom of movement, according to a voluminous document tabled in the House of Commons.

The document covers all regulations issued by the department for administration of these institutions. The purpose of the camps was to "provide relief for 'homeless, single men,' who were otherwise uncared for in other relief schemes."

Accommodation, food, clothing and medical care, and a daily allowance of 20 cents, were furnished, while the men were required to work eight hours a day, with Saturday afternoons, Sundays and statutory holidays observed.

"Personnel will be free to leave the camps at any time, except employment offered; they may be discharged 'for cause,' and if so discharged will be subsequently ineligible for re-employment under the scheme, except when there is a reasonable probability of the men behaving properly in future," the regulations set forth.

On discharge from camp—except in a case of misconduct, the government gave free transportation to the men to the point at which they were engaged, the document said. Extension of the policy was that free transportation was also given to men who had obtained employment, the government paying their fare from the camp to the place at which they were being given a job.

"The standard of rations shall be that as prescribed for the army," continued the regulations, "and, however, the only contact point between the camps and anything relating to the army, for the next regulation sets forth:

"No military discipline or training shall be installed; the status of the individual shall remain civilian in all respects."

Responsibility for the care of the men lay with the officer in charge of the camp. It was their object, the regulations declare, to ensure that the men's efficiency—mentally, physically and at the trades—was so improved that when conditions permitted the men may be returned to the economic life of the country, "well able again to take up their usual work."

To assist in this, education and instructional classes were formed, while every encouragement was given for recreation and sport.

Combat Soil Drifting

Federal Government Anxious To Help Western Farmers

Ottawa.—The Dominion department of agriculture, anxious to help western farmers avoid disastrous effects of drought, announced publication of a bulletin outlining methods to control soil drifting.

Publication of the bulletin follows announcement several weeks ago that the government would institute a program of water conservation and other means to counteract conditions that produced disastrous droughts in the southern midwest area.

The bulletin deals with control of soil drifting and describes in detail precautionary measures such as planting cover crops and strip farming. It contains also emergency measures of control for use in areas where drifting occurs infrequently.

It says soil drifting in western Canada began almost as soon as the land was first cultivated.

Coast Relief Strikers

Would Return To Camp, But Halted By Picketers

Victoria.—Between 700 and 800 relief camp workers now in Vancouver are eager to return to the camps but they have been halted by strike picketers, British Columbia relief authorities stated.

These workers have made application to be returned to the camps, have been given routine medical examinations and are prepared to leave but cannot get past the picket posts, it was declared.

Relief statistics showed approximately 2,000 relief workers from British Columbia camps were out on strike at the end of April while 5,618 men remained in the camps. There were 7,649 men in the camps at the end of March.

The mistress of the house heard the bell ring and saw standing at the open front door a Chinese peddler. She called out to the maid, "You go, Ella." This was too much for the Chinese, who stuck his head well into the hall and shouted indignantly: "You go 'ella yourself!'"

One of the lady inmates of a house near Hill Sixty was arrested a few days ago to face a rather serious charge. She appeared before the magistrate and was remanded for eight days for trial. She has been admitted to bail at $1000. This case will be watched with interest and it would be very interesting to the local public to know just who the bondsmen are.

Thirty-one years ago the first news of extravagance spread over the province of Alberta, when after several sessions of deliberation, the Blairmore village council decided to pay Capt. W. A. Beebe the enormous stipend of fifty dollars a year for his services as overseer and secretary-treasurer of the village and school district. Cap has rebated that amount through taxes since, plus something like $4800, which represents a pretty fair $50 investment for the village and school district. Cap's contribution to what is now the town of Blairmore and Blairmore school district has been more than that of any of his successors right down to the present day. Hair on you, Cap! At the time of Cap's appointment, referred to above, applications were received from all over Canada; even the state secretary of Illinois made application.

For several weeks past The Enterprise windows have been particularly well dressed, featuring the patriotic tri-colors, with poster announcements introducing all other colors. This week they are in the nude since our curtains are receiving their annual overhaul.

Many local folks, no doubt subscribers to the paper, are wondering why the Lethbridge Herald should copy an article from the Toronto Star Weekly that boosted Bill Knight and his local Red programme. Less than ten years from now they will be privileged to publish an entirely different story.
